Future Business Leaders of America Invites APFS to Speak

HOLBROOK, N.Y. (April 4) — American Portfolios Financial Services, Inc. (APFS) is always a proud supporter of the community. On Monday, April 4, Director of Human Resources Lisa DiBella gave a presentation to the local Briarcliff College's chapter of Future Business Leaders of America (FBLA).

The FBLA is a financial, business, economic, accounting, political and leadership club that is recognized nationally for its positive contributions to the nation, and local communities. The club consists of individuals who put community first, and demonstrate leadership qualities through their actions for the greater good of society, both on a business and personal level.

DiBella spoke with a number of students—both FBLA members and business students enrolled in the college—about human resources and management, and received a great deal of positive feedback from the students. For DiBella, the experience was a great one, and she was happy to have been given the wonderful opportunity to speak about a topic she is so passionate about.

APFS is proud of its continuing outreach into the community, and of its employees for their enthusiasm and dedication to organizations that make a difference in the lives of individuals and society.
